

Summary

It is said that ‘A picture is worth thousand words’.

I have classified and indexed most of the pictures of my patients with the best of my memory and ability.

My objective is to document my surgical experience of fifty years in pictorial form.

In most cases the diagnosis was established by the available diagnostic facilities.

In other cases indicated diagnosis is based by the elimination process of differential diagnosis.

Any alternate suggestion can certainly be accommodated.

I sincerely hope that readers will benefit from this atlas.

Prof. Shyam Parashar

Prof. Parashar is a 1959 medical graduate from G.R. Medical College and Vikram University in India. Three years later, he obtained the degree of Master of Surgery [M.S.], from the same University. For the next five years he continued his further training at All India Institute of Medical Sciences in New Delhi, India, and in various hospitals of England. Meanwhile he obtained the Fellowship of Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh [FRCS Ed.] in 1966. He returned India and joined Goa Medical College in India in 1969. In ten years he reached the highest rank of full Professor and Head of the Department of Surgery at the same college.

In 1980, he joined King Faisal University [later named as University of Dammam] as Professor of Surgery, and retired in 2013 as Emeritus Professor of Surgery.

Prof. Parashar has been a very popular teacher and well known surgeon amongst his students, trainees, colleagues and community in Goa as well as in Saudi Arabia.

He lives with his wife in USA; however he spends a lot of his leisurely time at his beautiful resort home at Dona Paula in Goa, India.
